There was grandfather Mahmut, an old farmer who lived in a beautiful village.

Grandpa Mahmut lived in a small hut. He was very happy.

One day, squirrel Karamel came to Grandpa Mahmut's field. He was very excited when he saw the corn in the field. He started gnawing the corn.

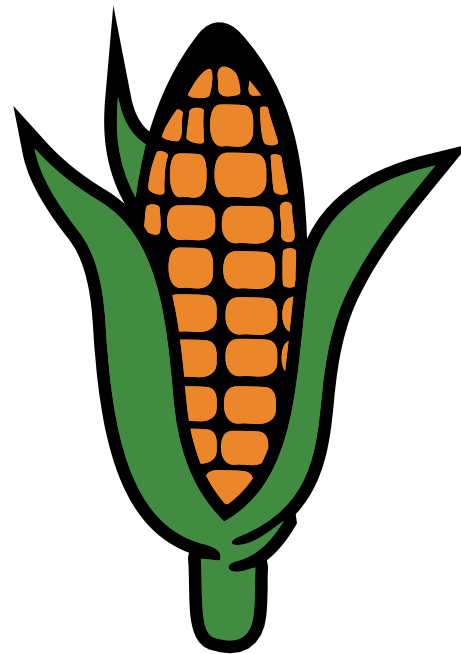

Grandpa Mahmut saw the squirrel. He started chasing him. Shouting:

-Stay away from my corn, he said. Squirrel Caramel quickly ran away.

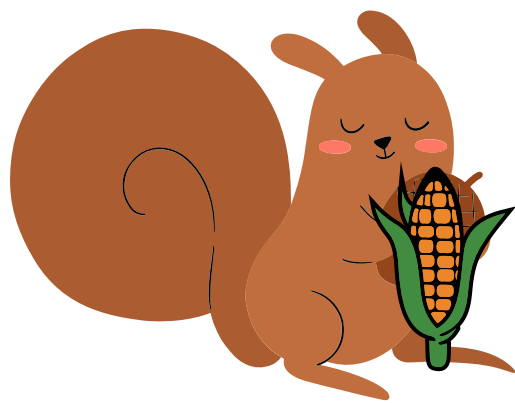

The next day he came back to the field and started eating the corn. Grandpa Mahmut decided to talk to the squirrel. Sadly:

- I worked hard to make my corn grow, he said. If you eat my corn, there will be no corn left for me.

Squirrel heard what grandfather Mahmut said, but he didn't care at all. He took a grain of corn and ran away. The farmer was very upset about what the squirrel did. He decided to keep watch in his field.

Every day, when the squirrel came to the field, he would see Grandpa Mahmut. Grandpa Mahmut was very patient. He protected his field. The squirrel stopped coming to the field because he couldn't eat corn.

Grandpa Mahmut was very happy that the squirrel did not come. He happily ate his corn.
